This is the season of joy, generosity, and gratitude.

Thank you for you for joining us for Miss Bennet: Christmas at Pemberley. This is your theatre, and we cannot wait to share this sparkling holiday show with you. The show combines so many of our favorite people—written by Lauren Gunderson and Margot Malcon, based on Jane Austen’s characters from Pride and Prejudice, and featuring a delightful cast—bringing back Alexis Bronkovic, Veronika Duerr, Vichet Chum, and Victoria Grace, and introducing you to Amanda Collins, Jesse Hinson, Katie Grindeland, and Shawn K. Jain.

So, when this came around, I was sold. Actually she sent it to us years ago to see if we would premiere it, and at the time we just couldn’t afford it—so we passed, and other theatres went on to have the glory of starting a show that will play for decades to come. But that was years ago, and since then, we’ve added Bonnie Butkas, who professionalized our admin and development staff — and bam! Here we are, able to take on the largest show MRT has attempted in at least 15 years with a cast of eight. And what a special one to do it on. One that celebrates not only the holidays, but literature and the women inside it.

The night before we started rehearsal, Lauren asked me to read this to the cast. It was amazing to look around the room and see them listen with their “I Voted” stickers on.

“Margot and I think it’s a pretty big deal to be telling a story about a woman who changes everyone around her instead of changing because of the world around her. We think it’s a pretty big deal to tell the story of a brilliant determined woman who is rewarded with understanding and love of her family and a nice young man. We think it’s a pretty big deal to tell a story that ends with hope and heart. We know you do too or you wouldn’t be in this room at this awesome theater company! Happy first day of rehearsal!”

What a great message for right now.

Hope and heart and women at the center of the story.

The things we always love at the holidays and couldn’t need more of in 2018.

Also who doesn’t love a holiday story? Not me.

This is the season of joy, generosity, and gratitude.

As I write this, dozens of volunteers are assisting with hand-folded paper ornaments for the set of Miss Bennet... Our community has stepped up to bring James Fenton's gorgeous set design to fruition—young women from Girls Inc., students from Valley Collaborative, our Cohort Club, artists from Western Avenue Studios, the Friends of MRT, and our crafty staff members have all volunteered their time and talent to fold, crease, glue, and fold some more.

In the spirit of giving, we will be collecting toys for children in Lowell throughout the run of Miss Bennet... Our neighbors at the Church of the Immaculate Conception work with dozens of families who will benefit from your generosity. And in the spirit of giving, thank you to all our audience members who contributed to the Essex County Community Foundation to support the people impacted by the gas explosions in Lawrence, Andover, and North Andover. You donated over $1,600 during the first show of our season!

Lastly, it has been an exciting season so far. We are grateful to be part of the Barr-Klarman Massachusetts Arts Initiative. With generous multi-year funding from the Barr and Klarmann foundations, we will address our ongoing structural deficit, invest in our artistic vision, grow our efforts to be equitable, diverse and inclusive, and plan for the future.

Thank you.

We wish you a happy, healthy holiday season.

Q&A: PLAYWRIGHT AND DRAMATURG MARGOT MELCON

How did you meet Lauren Gunderson?
Lauren and I first met when I was working at Marin Theatre Company as their dramaturg—she was brought out in 2009 to work on a play of hers called Rock Hill. She ended up moving to the Bay Area, and she and I began collaborating as playwright-dramaturg. We worked on several pieces in development at Marin Theatre, as well as on the world premiere of her play I and You.

How did the two of you come up with the idea of writing a sequel to Pride and Prejudice?

In the summer of 2014, she was working at Berkeley Rep's Ground Floor on a one-woman show with banjo that was loosely based on King Lear. [That play became The Heath, which premieres here at MRT in February.] We decided to take a road trip up to the Oregon Shakespeare Festival to see a production of Lear and on the six-hour car ride, we came up with the idea for Miss Bennet... The impulse came from both a practical place—all theater companies need good holiday shows to produce, and there just aren't that many to choose from—and a place of desire to see a different kind of holiday story. Ours is rooted in the complications of being part of a family, one that is made up of very different and dynamic women, and what it means to support each other.

You are a highly regarded dramaturg. Had you written a play before?
Though I had read literally thousands of plays as a dramaturg and the director of new play development at Marin Theatre, I had never written a play. So, my only experience of writing has been as a co-writer, but it has been an incredibly gentle entry into the world of being a playwright. The process of writing can be very solitary, very much alone, even in the theater, which is ultimately a collaborative artform. The nice thing about being part of a writing team is that the collaboration starts early, from the inception of the idea, so you're never staring down at a blank page by yourself. From the beginning, neither Lauren or myself were precious with the words we wrote, or took too much ownership. It was all in service of the story.

What do you think is the enduring appeal of Jane Austen?
Jane Austen will never go out of style because of her incredible use of wit and comedy. It is never not fun to dive into a world of people with problems that are maybe a little superficial, but always serve to showcase great and complex characters, especially the women. What I love especially about Pride and Prejudice is that each of the sisters has such a unique personality—at different times in your life, when you read the novel, you'll identify with a different one of the sisters. If you used to be more of a Lydia, you may evolve into a Lizzy. Or maybe you've always felt like a Mary at heart, until one day you wake up, and you're relating to Jane. That's the lovely thing about complicated characters: they resonate differently because each one of us has a little bit of each of them in us.

WHAT IS A DRAMATURG?
A dramaturg is the most misunderstood position in the theatre because the work of a dramaturg varies widely from project to project. In a nutshell, a theatre dramaturg is a literary editor, who consults with authors and analyzes and edits texts. Further, dramaturgs assist playwrights in structuring new plays. Dramaturgs also work with various aspects of the production, including crafting educational materials, creating marketing copy, and facilitating artistic and community conversations.

MRT IN BRIEF

GIVE AND YE SHALL RECEIVE!

Enter the MRT Holiday Raffle for only $5 per ticket, or grab five tickets for just $20. Each basket this year carries a value of more than $1,000. Visit our Facebook and Instagram pages for a full list of gift items.

The proceeds benefit the programs and productions of Merrimack Repertory Theatre, a not-for-profit arts and education organization and the Merrimack Valley’s only professional theatre. The winning tickets will be selected on December 23. Purchase raffle tickets in the lobby or by calling the Box Office at 978-654-4678. (Winners need not be present to win.)

Thank you for your kindness during this holiday season.

KEEP YOUR EYE ON THE LION!

Broadway HD, which allows you to stream theatre shows and musicals from your home or on a digital device, expects to premiere the live recording of The Lion in December (recorded at Geffen Playhouse in Los Angeles). Singer-songwriter Benjamin Scheuer’s award-winning musical memoir, director by MRT Artistic Director Sean Daniels, launched its national tour here in August of 2015, following critically acclaimed runs in New York and London.

LOWELL WALK

With the generous support of Mass Humanities, UMass Lowell Professor Robert Forrant (center) hosted a walking tour of downtown locations connected to the legacy of Jack Kerouac for MRT’s Cohort Club, board members, and donors. MRT will present the world premiere of Kerouac’s The Haunted Life, adapted by Sean Daniels, in March 2019.

GLORIA LEAHY

One of Merrimack Repertory Theatre’s most cherished supporters, Gloria J. Leahy, passed away in October. Leahy was one of the fledgling company’s first volunteers and subscribers, and she remained a steadfast supporter over the next 40 years. She cooked meals for the company, housed actors in her home, and raised funds for the theatre as a board member. During the 30th Anniversary gala, she was awarded the first-ever Friends of MRT service award, an honor later renamed the Gloria Leahy Service Award.

Co-Founder Nancy L. Donohue said, “Gloria was a volunteer even before the first board was formed! She was one of the volunteers who rode the trains to Boston selling tickets and manned a ticket booth on Merrimack Street. She housed and fed the visiting actors and did everything she was ever asked to do for years and years, and always did so with a smile in her happy nature. We will always miss her dearly.”

Leahy, a mother of six and the widow of Daniel P. Leahy, also served on the board of the Lowell Association for the Blind and as the president of the Lowell Lawyers Wives Association.

One of Merrimack Repertory Theatre’s most cherished supporters, Gloria J. Leahy, passed away in October. Leahy was one of the fledgling company’s first volunteers and subscribers, and she remained a steadfast supporter over the next 40 years. She cooked meals for the company, housed actors in her home, and raised funds for the theatre as a board member. During the 30th Anniversary gala, she was awarded the first-ever Friends of MRT service award, an honor later renamed the Gloria Leahy Service Award.

The Living Legacy Society

Merrimack Repertory Theatre’s Living Legacy Society was established to provide a lasting legacy for donors who believe in the mission of MRT.

The Living Legacy Society helps you combine financial goals with charitable giving. When you support MRT with a planned gift to the Living Legacy Society, you can:

- Secure steady payments throughout your lifetime and increase available income
- Ensure support of a loved one after your lifetime
- Reduce income, estate, and capital gains taxes
- Build lasting support for the greater Merrimack Valley’s only professional theatre

Living Legacy Society gifts may be made through a bequest, a gift of appreciated securities or assets, beneficiary designation of retirement plans or life insurance, a charitable remainder trust, or a gift of property.

Your support will ensure that MRT continues its vital role in arts, education, and community building for years to come.

If you have already made MRT part of your estate plans, we invite you to join the Living Legacy Society. Thank you.
